George H. Bryant, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bryant of Randolph and Miss Eliza F. Rimey were united in marriage at 2 o'clock Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rimey. Rev. Fraser Metzger was the officiating clergyman, a double ring service was used. The house was tastefully decorated with flowers, potted plants, ferns and berries of the mountain ash, and beneath the arch of evergreen, ferns and berries. The marriage was solemnized in the presence of ninety witnesses. The bride was becomingly gowned in white nun's veiling, trimmed with white lace and ribbon. The couple were attended by two little flower girls, Zeta Ellis and Dorothy Holden. A reception followed the service and refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. The new wedded couple slipped quietly away on a carriage trip to Roxbury and Northfield. The wedding gifts were numerous and beautiful and included a purse of money from the fellow employees of the groom at Salisbury Brothers.

WILLIAMSTOWN.

Geo. Elson of Montpelier was here on business Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Whitcomb was at H. S. Drury's for a short visit yesterday.

Quite a lively blaze was in G. D. Smith's woods Saturday afternoon but the welcome rain in the night put out the fire.

A ladies money purse containing a small sum was lost the last of the week, will finder be kind enough to leave it at Miss Drury's store.

Be sure to attend the grange fair this week 14th and 15th. Nothing has been spared to make it a success each evening. A good entertainment is to be given and all will be sure of their money's worth.

Dyspepsia is America's curse. Burdock Blood Bitters cures dyspepsia every time. It drives out impurities, tones the stomach, restores perfect digestion, normal weight, and good health.

Itching, bleeding, protruding or blind piles yield to Doan's Ointment. Chronic cases soon relieved, finally cured. Druggists all sell it.

Doan's Regulents cure constipation without griping, nausea, nor any weakening effect. Ask your druggist for them. 25 cents per box.

For any pain, from top to toe, from any cause, apply Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Pain can't stay where it is used.

Where Bullets Flew.

David Parker of Fayette, N. Y., a veteran of the Civil war, who lost a foot at Gettysburg, says: "The good Electric Bitters have done me worth more than five hundred dollars to me. I spent much money doctoring for a bad case of stomach trouble, to little purpose. I then tried Electric Bitters, and they cured me. I now take them as a tonic, and they keep me strong and well." 50c at Red Cross Pharmacy, Rickett & Wells' drug store.

On the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Walden from their honeymoon trip to Rhode Island a large party of their friends met at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. James Wilkie, and presented the happy couple with a handsome time-piece, George Lawson, with a few well-chosen words, made the presentation. The company spent a very enjoyable evening with music, songs and dancing.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Hoyt's A Bunch of Keys at Opera House Tonight.

The keynote of the fun in Hoyt's "A Bunch of Keys" which will be presented by Gus Bothner at the opera house this evening is cleanliness. Its humor is the good healthy American kind while its wit is the repartee of a clever mind. The nasty French farce has not been translated in America when Charles H. Hoyt gave us "A Bunch of Keys," so that comedy had to depend upon legitimate methods for success and not upon suggestiveness or indecency. "A Bunch of Keys" is still a reigning attraction while the French farce has been rejected as unfit for our audiences for a whole generation "A Bunch of Keys" has furnished amusement and in the hands of a wonderful management, it seems good for another generation. Gus Bothner takes pride in presenting the favorite old farce comedy gem on a generous scale, and its successful tours each season attest the fact that his efforts are appreciated. This season he has outdone himself and "A Bunch of Keys" will seem almost like an original production. New Comedy situations, have been introduced to add to the general hilarity, bright and catchy songs have been interpolated to add to the general entertainment and clever comedians, singers and dancers have been engaged to give a careful and ambitious interpretation of the comedy. An evening of mirth, melody and merriment is in store for our audiences when "A Bunch of Keys" comes to town. It is safe to assume that Bothner's greater "A Bunch of Keys" will receive a rousing welcome.

"The Devil."

When the only correct and authorized version of Franz Molnar's remarkable Hungarian comedy "The Devil" as made known by Henry W. Savage's company of players at the Garden theatre, New York, his Satanic Majesty, in the guise of Dr. Miller, suddenly appears from the depths of a great antique arm-chair and confronts Olga Hofmann, the banker's wife, the audience is thrilled, electrified—put in instant touch with the psychological side of this most engrossing play. And those sudden, unexpected heart-exhilarating thrills occur all through the play. There is comedy plenty of it, and the keen wit and penetrating satire of the Devil brings many a laugh, but behind it all is the heartache and the temptation and tragedy of human life. It is these constant contrasts that give the play one of its greatest charms. "The Devil" at the opera house on next Thursday evening, October 15th is by permission of Mr. Savage and company and scenery are exact counterparts of the Garden theatre production.

CABOT

S. J. Norris, representative, was at home over Sunday.

Liquor Samples Ate About One Quarter Below Par.

A partial report of the samples of liquor from the Middlesex wine store which were sent to the state laboratory at Burlington some time ago, has been received by State's Attorney Gates, and although the complete chemical analysis has not been sent him as yet, enough data has been gathered to make it appear that about one-quarter of the samples collected are below the standard set up by the pure food law. Fifty-two samples were forwarded to the state laboratory, and out of these thirteen were found to be below the standard, that is, they contained foreign material and did not stand the test put to them for purity. Almost all the samples that were found to be below standard were sealed packages, coming directly from the wholesalers, and not put up from bulk stock by the proprietors of the wine store.

The month of September in city court was considerably busier than the same month of 1907. There were 22 cases in September this year against 12 for the same month last year.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Scribner of 27 Prospect street, are to celebrate their golden wedding on Monday, October 12, when they extend a general invitation to their friends and neighbors to call upon them.

John Wallace, who says he is from Plattburgh, was arraigned before Judge Harvey yesterday and pleaded guilty to intoxication and was fined $5 with costs of $7.20 or the alternative sentence of 20 days in jail. As he had no money he took the jail sentence.

Rev. Deane C. Foster, lecturer and pastor of Berlin Congregational church, has received a call to the church in Hardwick. He is still considering the matter and will not announce his decision for a short time. Mr. Fraser came to Berlin three years ago.

Announcement was made in Montpelier's senior chapel yesterday of the Phoenix board for the ensuing year its members being as follows: Editor in chief, B. A. Colby; business manager, C. N. Bemis; assistant business manager, O. S. Smithers; general literature, Miss Ruth Gilbert, Alfred Brigham; locals, Miss Elsie Stickney, R. A. Crandall; music, Miss Glenn Morse; art, Miss Jessie Gates; education, Miss Martha Bailey; business, Earl Lombard; athletics, D. S. Fairchild; exchanges, F. W. Marshall; alumni, Miss Judith Haines, A. D. Simpson.

One of the largest pumpkins ever exhibited in the city is now in the office of the Pavilion. It is known as the mammoth pumpkin. It was raised on the grounds of the Brattleboro retreat and the superintendent of the farm claims to T. J. Healy that the pumpkin was not fed but allowed to grow just like any ordinary pumpkin. In his letter, telling about it, he stated that they had larger pumpkins at the farm, one of which was to be shipped to the pavilion but they had no box big enough to hold it. The pumpkin here weighs 181 pounds. It is a rival to the Hubbard squash recently shown in the Jerome fruit store by O. G. Eaton of Waitsfield.

LABOR TO WIELD BALLOT.

Chicago Federation Formulates Plan of Campaign.

A call for 100,000 volunteers to man the polls on primary day has been issued to trades unionists by the political action committee of the Chicago Federation of Labor. The action was taken at a meeting called for the purpose of devising ways and means of financing labor's political campaign.

Approximately $10,000 was raised for the campaign fund, the money being contributed by candidates who have received the indorsement of the federation. Seventy-one of the candidates indorsed attended the session.

By a unanimous vote the candidates present decided to leave the management of the campaign, so far as the labor end of it is concerned, in the hands of the political action committee. All literature and other campaign material will be paid for and distributed by the committee. Circular letters containing a list of both Republican and Democratic candidates indorsed will be mailed to 150,000 trades unionists in Chicago and Cook county.

Waste of Silage.

The following is a Canadian farmer's method of preventing waste of silage:

"Each year as frequently as silos are filled there is considerable waste owing to the surface layer coming in contact with the air. The loss varies with the condition of the corn and with the attention it has received after it is placed in the silo. In seasons of plenty it is a common practice to simply fill the silo and take chances on what would spoil. This is a very wasteful practice. It is possible to bring this waste down to a minimum by a little attention after the silo has been filled and thoroughly tramped.

"Last year, owing to the scarcity of corn, we made an extra effort to preserve all that we had. As a result of these efforts there were scarcely two inches of spoiled silage. After the silo was filled and thoroughly tramped we put a two inch layer of clover chaff on it. We then dampened this chaff with a barrel of water in which had been dissolved a ten quart pail of salt. This brine proved to be the most effectual preserver we had ever tried. On the surface, when we came to feed the silage, the two inch layer on top peeled off slick and clean and left good silage immediately underneath. Try this scheme on your silo this fall, and you will save much fodder that would otherwise be spoiled. It is much better than chaff and growing grain such as is commonly used."

Vinegar.

A gallon of vinegar weighs more in winter than in summer, as the cold causes the fluid to contract.

Pretty Near Right.

"The plural, then, of 'right' is 'rights'." The teacher asked, "Sally, what is a most precocious little tot?" "It's bigamy," I guess."

The Mightiness of Truth.

"Truth is mighty," said the moral teacher.

"Yes," rejoined the demoralizer, "it is mighty scarce."—Detroit Tribune.

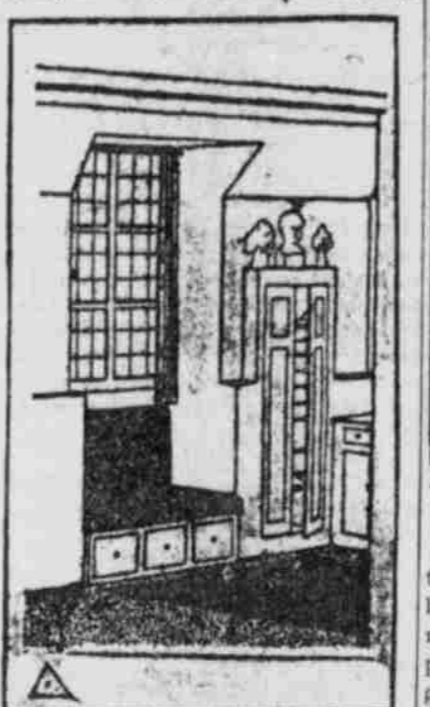

BUILT-IN SEATS.

Inexpensive Furnishings For the Comfortable Cozy Corner.

Built-in seats that are afterthoughts are often a great improvement in the appearance of a room, and they can be successfully managed if one keeps in mind the principles upon which architecture stands. Separate seats are rarely as effective as those that are stationary, though it must be admitted that comfort goes often with the former than it does with the latter.

Any kind of a seat, whether it is an attached part of the room or a movable piece of furniture, should be comfortable to sit in first of all, and then attention should be given to its upholstery. Comfort can be achieved only by the use of springs or very soft, luxurious cushions, and where the seat is large the cushions should be plentiful. Dirt collects on the seat part more than it does on the back and sides. Therefore it is a good idea to have the seat cushion removable, so that it can be cleaned and aired frequently and the cushion reversed occasionally.

It is not always agreeable to have a window cut in over a seat of this kind on account of drafts. If there is any crack through which a cold wind can find its way, then it is sure to strike disagreeably against the neck or shoulders of one enjoying the comforts of the seat. The effect of a window, especially a mullioned one, is too pleasant, however, to allow the draft feature a great deal of consideration. It is the housewife who has learned by experience about the dust and the cold air that go with this charming bit of furnishing who votes against it another time. But whether there is a window or not—and if there is it should swing out instead of in—nothing should be placed above the seat to interfere with one's leaning back. When pictures, shelves and other ornaments occupy places that by right belong to the person in the seat, then

UPHOLSTERED IN ARNAS CLOTH.

One the great charm of the lounging place is lost. It has ceased to be comfortable.

There is an endless variety of inexpensive furnishings that look well and do not bring a pang to the housewife's heart when they begin to show the effects of sunshine and usage. Cretonne is the fabric par excellence for certain kinds of rooms, for bedrooms particularly and for living rooms which are furnished in the chintz period. A new kind of open mesh fabric that is being used for curtains and cushion tops has large square openings, through which a colored lining shows. When this material is used for hangings at a window no lining is needed, but for all other purposes a substantial foundation of this kind must be provided.

Aras cloth is always in favor on account of its good wearing qualities, the variety of colors it comes in and its generally good effect with almost any style of furniture. It can be used either plain or decorated with coarse needlework, with applique or with stenciling. Any one of these treatments will be highly satisfactory.

Schooling for a Princess.

It is significant that even the Princess of Wales is a believer in the advantages of class room education as over against the old tutorial methods commonly employed in the education of royalty. The Princess of Wales believes that girls should have every advantage of modern education and so is considering sending her daughter, the Princess Mary, to school.

Princess Mary, who is a clever little needlewoman and is already very well advanced in her studies for a child of her age, would undoubtedly find "lessons" far more interesting if she had classmates of her own age to compete with. It is therefore by no means unlikely that she will be sent to school, says Home Notes.

Of course in that case she would have her private suit of rooms and her own governess in attendance, but her lessons would be taken with the other pupils, and she would be treated as one of them, just as Prince Edward, England's future king, is at present only one of the many cadets at Osborne.

The Other Way.

Mr. Bangs' "Plan Party."

Not long ago, John Kendrick Bangs, the well known humorist, author and lecturer, having decided to build a permanent home on the Maine coast, his prospective neighbors offered so many suggestions that he concluded to invite them all to meet him and his wife at a social gathering, and to submit plans for the new house. Mr. Bangs tells the result in an article in Suburban Life for October, which is full of laughs from beginning to end.

Tomatoes and Cheese.

We all are quite used to eating cheese with tomato salad, but it is quite as good when incorporated with it.

Serve thick slices of tomatoes with a slice of cream-cheese about half the thickness inserted between them. Put these layers on a lettuce leaf and cover with mayonnaise.

Tomatoes cut in half and sprinkled with Parmesan cheese, then covered with French dressing in which more of the cheese and a bit of garlic have been incorporated, has a Spanish flavor that is equally delicious for American palates.

Take Care of Your Brushes.

Tooth and nail brushes should always be stood in such a position that all water can drain from them.

Household brushes last much longer if taken care of and washed regularly. Remember that they should never be allowed to rest on the bristles.
